We're looking into it now—here's what you can expect next.

Hi Michael Woodcock,

Thanks for sharing your concern about potential home sharing activity in your community. We take these issues seriously, and we'll do our best to help resolve your concern.

Our team has officially processed your submission and has created a case number for you:

Here's what we'll do next:

- We'll review the Airbnb listing URL you shared
- Our team will then get in touch with the host to voice your concern and, if needed, take further action.
- We'll follow up with you after additional investigation. If we need to, we'll reach out for more information.

As a reminder, here's the information we received from you that we'll be following up on:

Message to host

The owner is ok with renting this house out for parties where over 25 cars show up. He does not have legal parking for 25 cars and the cars parked in a no parking zone across the street, where it is clearly marked private parking, and he and the guests never requested permission.

Message to Airbnb

The guests were walking all over our lawn, shining lights near our house thinking we were the party house. This is just too much living nextdoor to this airbnb. See the video here, I am not sure if this was rented as an AirBNB at the time or not, as it is also a VRBO
