Hello ,

Thank you for reaching back out to us about this case. It is important for us that you know that Airbnb is an online platform and does not own, operate, manage or control accommodations, nor do we verify private contract terms or arbitrate complaints from third parties. We do, however, require Hosts to represent that they have all the rights to list their accommodations. As such, we take these types of complaints seriously and are committed to notifying Hosts and guests when we receive them. So for the specific case we contacted the parties involved and with the information collected we took actions as per our policies and Terms of Service, which you can view by clicking on the link below, and we will continue to take note of any further issues raised regarding this listing.

Due to our current privacy policy and the security of our users, we are unable to share detailed actions taken on another user's account with an unauthorized person. I sincerely apologize for any inconvenience and truly hope you can understand.

If you have any feedback that you would like to share about this policy and your experience using the Airbnb platform you can direct your communications to our management team for our policy developers at Airbnb by clicking the link below and filling out the form.

We understand this could be distressing, that's why we took actions for the case following the procedures, and we keep the repetitive behavior in our files so if this happens again we can follow the appropriate process. Here is the link to our community disturbance policy in case you might want to review it.

Also, if at any point you feel your safety or your lifestyle has been affected by a guest or a Host we recommend you to contact your local authorities.

Please don't hesitate to let me know if there's anything else I can help you with, and we would like to thank you for giving us this opportunity in helping to improve our community.

We now consider this particular report closed.

Best,
